Trading in Stocks Generally Quieter and Much Selling Brought Out.

ADVANCES ARE CHECKED

Steel Comes Again Into Public Favor and Touches a New High Record.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was very much quieter all around yesterday, due, no doubt, to the prospect of the prolonged holiday over the week end. This brought out a great deal of selling that would have ordinarily been held off until the short session on Saturday, and tended to check whatever tendency there may have been in some quarters to continue the advance in the general list. A good part of Wall Street was also under good part of Wall Street was also under the impression that the German peace delegates were scheduled to file to-day delegates were scheduled to file to-day their final answer as whether or not Germany intends to sign the peace treaty. This was, of course, an erroneous impression, for all that is expected to take place in this respect to-day is the filing of the German counter proposals with the Allies, but it sufficed to bring out more than the ordinary emount of selling pressure. The market's answer to this test was again satisfactory from every viewpoint, and although the general trend of the dealings was irregular not a few of the standard shares made some progress during the course of 70% regular not a few of the standard shares made some progress during the course of the day, particularly the Steel shares.

Under the circumstances a further decline was undoubtedly in order for the day. The fact that it did not take place, or at least was not quite so general as expected, again spoke well for the technical situation, which had been pretty well strengthened by the declines of the two preceding days. There is no question that the market is still in a weak condition in so far as the great majority of special stocks are concerned, but at the same time it is also clear that something more than unconfirmed majority of special stocks are concerned, but at the same time it is also clear that something more than unconfirmed reports of unfavorable money conditions, such as were created on Tuesday for the sole purpose of bringing about a reaction, is necessary in order to shake the public out of the wemendous profits which they have rolled up in the last few weeks. There were no such rumors yesterday to create unsettlement, nor was there any question about the satisfactory condition of the money market, but whatever favorable impression this may have vreated was more than offset may have vreated was more than offset by the evening up of commitments for over the holiday and by the reports that Germany would give final answer today on the peace terms, both of which undoubtedly exercised an important in-fluence on the course of prices during the day.

In so far as the general market was concerned there were no very much outstanding features. The steel stocks came back into public favor in the afternoon. Steel common reaching a new high record for the current movement, but the strength, or rather the buying movement, was short lived, as were the attempts, to continue the advancing movement in most of the other departments. One thing that may have accounted for the strength in Steel common was the fact that it sells ex dividend to-day. The only really important exception to the general trend was Baldwin, which held its strength throughout the session. There was a rather spectacular advance in the marines at the outset, but their strength was not maintained, and subsequent heavy selling pressure resulted in depressing both issues to about the closing figures of Tuesday's market. The copper stocks were rather held in check by the sharp break in metal prices, but this was not regarded in well informed circles as having any wide influence. circles as having any wide influence. There was strength in the food stocks again and in some of the higher priced ralls during the earlier part of the day. but their actions during the day, as a whole, were rather disappointing, particularly so far as Southern Pacific was

There were still some reports in cer-There were still some reports in certain circles concerning the possibility of restrictions on speculative operations, but these were not credited in well informed quarters and had very little influence on the market. It may be that the present pace of speculation is not to the liking of some interests, but it can be stated authoritatively that the great majority of bankers are not in favor of taking any steps at present toward placing the Stock Exchange under any further money restrictions. The foreign exchange market was stronger, being featured by strength in francs and lire, both of which recorded substantial being featured by strength in francs and lire, both of which recorded substantial improvement. Sterling was slightly easier, as were some of the neutrals. Otherwise the market was quiet and rates were about unchanged from the preceding day's closing. The cotton market was firmer although not so spectacular as it was earlier in the week.

American Smeltting and Refining. To that long list of railroad and industrial stocks, which have developed into near-oil properties through the discovery of a well or two on their holdings, was added yesterday the American Smelting and Refining Company, which, according to report, is not going to let the oil boom slip by without doing a little prospecting for the clusive liquid. Some of the insiders, who were in the Street vesterday accumulating American Street yesterday accumulating American Smelters, brought with them the infor-mation that oil indications have been discovered on some of Smelter's copper discovered on some of Smelters copper properties in Texas and Mexico and that the corporation officials have taken the indications so seriously that already they have let contracts for the exploration.

The Leather Shorts.

The various speculative cliques, which have been active in the leather stocks ever since the signing the armistice, gave indications yesterday of coming to life again. All of the leather issues showed gains at the end of the day. Central Leather was up 3 points, but the big feature was American Hide and Leather preferred, which is understood to be in about the same position technically as it was last fall, when the big nicelly as it was last fall, when the big movement began. The continued rise of this stock, especially since it has been above par, has brought no end of short selling on the theory that the last earn-ing statement of the company did not justify its selling prices. The result has beer that a large short interest has beer built up again. Yesterday it be-gan to feel the tightening of the screws preparatory to another squeezing similar to that which took place a long time ago in the case of General Motors and Mexican Petroleum. In addition it was rumored that the pool, which has been responsible for the rise in United States Rutber, had branched out and entered the leathers.
